

Love IS WORTH THE WORK

A Workbook of Love Designed for Marriages and Individuals

Profile

Ed and Angel Cooper have a heart for relationships. They want to see married couples communicating, working together and growing in their love for one another. They want single people to understand that life is still great regardless of their single status. In addition to understanding that singleness is a time for preparation and personal self growth and love.

Also, everyone should work together to build the community around them. Supporting and encouraging one another to be their best. Bringing their best together to the table to restore lives and provide everyone a quality life.

Ed and Angel understand that relationships take work. After being married for more than 25 years, they have put in the work and want to share their experiences with others. They can be seen weekly on The Cooper Chronicles (show) providing relationships tips. In addition, the couple has written a book “Love is Worth the Work”.

The Cooper Chronicles is a 30 min show that began on Facebook Live and now has moved to the NOW network. Within this time slot, Ed and Angel discuss a number of topics such as rekindling the love, communication techniques, importance of forgiving fast, and reinventing your relationship. The Cooper Chronicles also provides discusses singleness and engaging your community.
